Confidentiality Agreement

This agreement is between Northwind Harbor Logistics ("the Company") and Peter Hale ("the Employee"). It takes effect on the date the Employee signs it.

1. Definitions

1.1 "Confidential Information" means any non-public information about the Company's customers, vessel schedules, pricing, contracts, systems, finances or staff that the Employee learns through their work.

1.2 It does not include information that is already public through no fault of the Employee, or that the Employee knew lawfully before joining the Company.

1.3 "Materials" means documents, files, devices and records in any form that contain Confidential Information.

2. Duty of confidentiality

2.1 The Employee will use Confidential Information only to do their job and will not disclose it to anyone outside the Company without written permission.

2.2 The Employee will take reasonable care to keep Materials secure, including locking devices and using only approved systems to store or send them.

2.3 The Employee will tell their manager promptly if they believe Confidential Information has been lost or disclosed.

Sign below to confirm that you have read and understood the definitions in section 1.

Definitions acknowledged (signature required)

Peter Hale, Operations Analyst

3. Permitted disclosure

3.1 Nothing in this agreement stops the Employee from making a disclosure that the law protects or requires, including reporting a concern to a regulator.

4. Return of materials

4.1 When employment ends, or earlier if asked, the Employee will return all Materials and delete any copies held on personal devices or accounts.

5. Duration

5.1 The duties in this agreement continue during employment and for three years after it ends. Trade secrets remain protected for as long as they stay secret.

6. General

6.1 If any part of this agreement cannot be enforced, the rest continues to apply.

6.2 This agreement does not change the Employee's other terms of employment.

7. Agreement

By signing below the Employee agrees to all of the terms on both pages of this agreement.

Agreed by (signature required)

Peter Hale, Operations Analyst

For Northwind Harbor Logistics

Dana Whitlock, People Operations